Our Philosophy

Hickatee Cottages Philosophy

is one of minimal impact to the environment, and maximum benefit to our adopted community.

We offer a sustainable, quality product to protect the environment, conserve natural resources and preserve local economy.

Important Jungle Expectations

Off-Grid.

Hickatee Cottages is off-grid. Our facility is operated by solar panels and battery supply. We have ample power for en-suite fans and lighting as well as hot water for relaxing showers, but we ask that hairdryers or other high-powered, heated devices are not used in our cottages.

Unpaved Roads.

While we are only 1.5 miles from downtown Punta Gorda, it may get muddy and our roads develop potholes. This, however, is the trade-off for an attractive jungle location, complete with resident howler monkeys.

Natural Breeze.

Our cottages are fully screened to allow for the fresh, nature breeze to flow through. With this jungle experience, our cottages do not include A/C.

Safety and Accessibility.

Hickatee Cottages is located on a relatively flat ground, and all paths are of gravel rock material. Each cottage has approximately six steps with safety railings and are within a short walking distance of all facility needs and the parking lot entrance. Due to the nature of the location, Hickatee Cottages is not wheelchair accessible.

Jungle Flyers.

The jungle offers beautiful flora and fauna, but this also comes with the various insects of the jungle. We recommend insect repellent for those more sensitive to our winged friends.

About Toledo District

Local Transportation |

Travelers will fly into the Philip S. W. Goldson International Airport (BZE) and take a 30-minute domestic flight via Tropic Air to Punta Gorda (PND). Hickatee Cottages is approximately 20-minute drive from the air strip.

Local Economy |

In general, the Belizean economy primarily relies on agriculture and tourism.

Agriculturally, farmers largely crop rice, beans, corn and cacao. Most of the crops produced in the southern regions are sold for local consumption and not export. Cacao, however, is widely an export product and is used by larger cacao production companies such as Green & Blacks, Mahogany Chocolate, and other bean to bar companies.

Tourism in Southern Belize is perfect for those seeking adventure, nature, or cultural experiences. Though the southernmost part of the country is less travelled than the beach/resort towns, the Toledo District offers personal connections and creates a positive contribution to local communities.

Anthropology & Local Culture |

Those born and raised in the Toledo District are proud of the cultural harmony that exists between the many cultures of Southern Belize. The district comprises of a rich cultural heritage, including Mopan and Kekchi Maya, Garifuna, East Indians, Chinese, Creole and Mennonite. This cultural heritage expresses traditional dress, native language, and cultural culinary cuisines.

Villages and Punta Gorda Town |

Today, the Mayan comprise of the largest percentage of the Toledo District, which includes over thirty Mopan and Kekchi Maya communities throughout the district. The Garifuna, East Indian and Creole descents generally habitat near Punta Gorda town. In general, the communities are under-developed, and most families live a simple lifestyle with dependency on food from farming and fishing.

Experiences of Southern Belize |

Southern Belize and the Toledo District is known as being under-developed and untouched. While it is not considered a touristy location, those who visit will experience the customs and cultures of local people, the beauty in nature, and preserved archeological sites. Below are some additional links to the wonders the district has to offer.
